Peonies Irises Tulips

FALL 1926
SPRING 1927

WHOLESALE PRICE LIST

—of—

The Sam Carpenter Gardens

Oswego, Kansas

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

We consider The Sam Carpenter Gardens reliable and responsible, and believe that any business entrusted to them will receive prompt and satisfactory attention.

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK
AT OSWEGO.

(SEAL) W. A. Lawellin, Cashier.

A FEW WORDS ABOUT BUSINESS.

Shipments are made by parcel post or express. In the absence of instructions we use our best judgment.

We make no charge for packing, but, at the prices quoted, all shipping charges are to be paid by the purchaser.

Terms are cash with the order.

All plants are freshly dug and our aim is to send out only such plants as we should be glad to receive ourselves. All shipments have our personal care.

Plants are guaranteed to be true to name and we make no substitutions without obtaining permission to do so. Any stock proving untrue to name will be replaced without further expense to the customer.

To Our Friends

The business of our first year in the commercial field has far exceeded the mark we had set, and we wish to express our thanks and appreciation for your patronage, and to assure you that we desire in every transaction to give complete satisfaction and that if in any instance we, or our products have not measured up to your expectations, we will consider it a favor if you will write us about it, and give us an opportunity to make good.

We have received shipments of such stock as we list in this book from nearly every prominent grower in this country and abroad, and we know the stock we send out is much better than the average we have received, and believe that it is as good as the best.

Our peonies and irises are grown in new soil, and divisions are made from two and three year old plants, that are vigorous and healthy.

We have just returned from a tour, visiting many gardens in Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, and attending the great annual show of The American Peony Society at Ft. Wayne, Ind.

While we have learned much on the trip, we still believe that we have the most ideal conditions for raising good peonies and irises here in Oswego, Kansas, that we have seen anywhere. These are cheap labor, cheap land, all the manure wanted for the cost of hauling, and a long growing season. We saw no three year old peonies on our trip. that were larger than our two year olds. As an illustration—three years ago we received of The Brand Peony Farm, four roots of the peony "Desire." We were flooded with orders for this variety, which we were obliged to decline, but we filled orders for eight standard divisions, averaging four eyes each, which we obtained from two of our two year old plants, and the other two we divided into thirty-one divisions, mostly single-eye, and have them growing nicely in our gardens. We know each of these will make at least a three-eye plant by fall, so we are safe in listing this peony again.

There is a controversy among peony authorities as to the propriety of selling small divisions. Mrs. Edward Harding, a leading authority, takes such a strong position against the small division, that one wonders whether a responsible dealer would be guilty of the practice of selling such.

It is our own practice to plant small divisions, especially of the high priced and scarce varieties, but if money were no object we would most assuredly plant standard divisions, as no bloom should be expected the first year from the small plants. However, we had a bloom from a one-eyed plant of Alice Harding this year that was beautiful, and greatly admired by all visitors, who were curious to see the $150.00 peony.

We may dig and sell a one-year plant, but we never divide anything under two and three years old that has shown typical bloom.

This year we list neither dahlias nor gladiolus in our catalogue.

In the case of dahlias, it was the season, for we had always grown fine dahlias heretofore, but throughout the entire southwest, including the demonstration gardens of the Missouri Botanical Garden at St. Louis, dahlias were a failure last year.

We are growing more than 100 varieties of dahlias right now, but we will not offer tubers for sale again until we can assure ourselves we can raise as good as they do in New Jersey.

As for glads, we planted 60,000 this spring, and never saw finer blooms than we are cutting daily, but they do not increase for us as they should, and where we cannot excell, we prefer to leave the field to those who can.

So many requests have come for a wholesale catalogue that we are issuing this list, and we will be obliged to defer the publication of our illustrated descriptive catalogue until next year.

PEONIES

The Peony is the grandest of the perennials and one of the oldest flowers in cultivation. In China its history goes back for centuries. It has been cultivated in France and England for over eighty years, and yet few really know the modern flower. There are four or five hundred distinct varieties listed by the American Peony Society and each one has its own individual charm and appeal.

To the layman a white Peony is a white Peony but about the same as any other white Peony, but the Peony lover and connoisseur sees the difference in the formation of the flower, the foliage, and in the habit of the plant—the blooming season, whether early, midseason or late; the difference in the shading and texture of the petals, also the fragrance. He notices if the petals are incurving or if they open out and curl back. In pink and rose shades some are deeper in the center and others deeper towards the edge of the flower. Some are globular, some flat and some cup-shaped, and all are beautiful.

Everyone with even a small area of garden space should grow a few Peonies. Once your interest is aroused, we are sure you will become a lasting and enthusiastic admirer.

CULTURE. The Peony is one of the easiest of all flowers to raise. Once established it increases in beauty from year to year and should be disturbed only to divide the roots when the plant becomes too dense for best results. This will be necessary only every eight or ten years. If you wish to increase your stock rapidly it may be done every two or three years.

No flower is more free from disease or from insect pests.

Late September and the month of October is the best time for planting. The ground should be deeply worked and enriched but no fresh manure should come in contact with the roots. Plants should be set so that the eyes or buds are two inches below the surface. Deeper planting will result in few flowers. Plant in full sunshine away from roots of large shrubs and trees. Set the plants three to three and a half feet apart.

Never plant the Peony where Peonies have grown before or not until at least six years have elapsed. Disregard of this rule is sure to result in failure.

The list offered below has been carefully selected from the best varieties in the world and is the most complete we have seen issued by any grower.

The American Peony Society rating is given before the name of each variety on a basis of 100 per cent perfect. Those not rated are so scarce or recent that they have not yet been voted upon.

THE IRIS

The German Iris succeeds best in a well-drained, sunny location, but, other conditions being favorable, will do well in partial shade. They are one of the few flowers that will hold their own against the roots of shrubs and trees; even the voracious elm tree roots do not seem to discourage them.

They can be divided and moved at any time except when in bloom, but from July first to the latter part of September is the best time for shipping and planting. Lime and bone meal make the best dressing for the Iris—the lime worked into the soil before planting and the bone meal used as a top dressing in the spring. Do not plant too deep. The soil should barely cover the rhizomes.

The Iris is well named, for in variety of color it exceeds any other of the perennials. It ranges from the deepest purple through all the shades to the lightest blue, old gold to cream and pure white, strong pink to delicate blush, from bronze to buff and endless combinations of shades and tints that are fairly bewildering. There is also a fascination about the orchid-like form and texture of the flower.

"Flowers are the beautiful hieroglyphics of Nature, by which she indicates how much she loves us."

—Goethe.

Gardening is a source of much greater profit than is generally imagined; and merely as an amusement, or recreation, it is one of the most rational and most conducive to health. It is a pursuit, not only compatible with, but favourable to, the study of any art or science. It tends to turn the minds of youth from amusements and attachments of a frivolous or vicious nature. It is indulged at home. It tends to make home pleasant; and to endear to us the spot on which it is our lot to live.

—William Cobbett.

"God made the Flowers to beautify
The earth, and cheer man's careful mood:
And he is the happiest who hath power
To gather wisdom from a Flower,
And wake his heart in every hour
To pleasant gratitude."

—Wordsworth.
